For the Members, Family and Friends of Zion Blue Mountain United Church of Christ

Lent has begun. During this season we are mimicking the biblical experience of “wilderness time.” Israel’s forty years of wandering, Elijah’s forty days in the cave listening, and Jesus’ forty days of temptation; now the church intentionally enters into forty days of contemplation. A few weeks ago I enjoyed fashnachts. On Wednesday of that week, Ash Wednesday, many of us began the spiritual work of giving up something, for Lent. The church calls this ‘fasting.’ But doing this isn’t designed to make us better people, or lose a few pounds. It is about letting these disciplines focus our attention on God...and that is what Lent is about.

Sue Monk Kidd writes:

I reach in my backpack for my journal...here, I glued a small picture of the Tin Woodsman from the Wizard of Oz onto the front of it. I stare at it now.

It reminds me that I’m here in search of my heart.

Before Dorothy rescued him with the oil can, the Tin Woodsman was completely rusted over.

Even his tears were frozen on his face. In the original story, the Tin Woodsman is a real person whose axe becomes cursed, causing him to slowly cut away his body and his heart, piece by piece, until he is no longer covered in warm flesh but trapped in an armor of tin. He can no longer feel or cry. His condition is numbness. His heart is lost.

I lean back on my elbows until I’m submerged in stalks of Queen Anne’s lace. I close my eyes. I do not feel numb, nor is my heart really lost, and yet I resonate with the image of the Tin Woodsman. I think of the ways my heart has become distant...I see how I’ve related to those close to me with lessening intimacy, with paler shades of love, how I’ve looked at suffering around me and felt strangely unaffected by it. I know these things point to a heart slowly becoming lost.

I ask myself: How did this happen?

I believe that our lenten discipline of “giving up something” is a kind of emptying so we might fill up on good stuff. Lenten discipline brings me back to a simpler focus, it clears room inside. Sue writes, “It allows me to empty myself out so there is gracious space within where I can receive myself, then God, and eventually, others.” This idea is in keeping with our main business of the church: to increase our love of God and of one another. Don’t reject too quickly a lenten fast, a giving up, no matter how small. But remember all the while that emptying out is not to create a void but to find space for God. Lent is at least partly about letting God fill persons who are normally quite full.

See ya in church, and at mid-week services,

Pastor Jon A. Fogle

GETTING ON WITH OUR SEARCH:

Consistory met with Rev. Sharon Morris on Sunday February 18. The discussion was about our journey in finding a new settled pastor. Consistory heard the details of the process and how it has changed from the last time we did a search and call. Consistory has only 3 jobs in this process: to develop a job description; to establish a compensation package and to gather members for the transition team and search committee. It is up to the members of these 2 groups using input from our congregation to "find" a pastor for Zion. We will all have a chance to participate. The Transition team compiles the church profile and will hold "focus groups" in order to listen to others and be heard regarding the search. The Consistory has been asked to prayerfully consider who they think would be qualified to do the tasks necessary for the 2 teams and they will meet in March to begin recruiting members. They will be prayerfully considering who has the gifts necessary for this work. If you are asked please prayerfully consider why you have been asked before giving your answer. Understand that God is trying to work through us and we need to be able to fulfill God's will in order to call our next settled pastor.

The Deacon's Coin Purse:

As we all know stewardship is important to every church. We usually hear about stewardship in the fall when church comes back to life as the new school year starts. But right now we need to think about the summer and how attendance dips down during those months due to vacations, outdoor events and general chaos in the fun department. Along with this the collection plate is a lot lighter. Think about spreading your summer donations over the months, to the collection plate leading up to summer. The church will benefit by maintaining itself and its programs. And you can feel good that your stewardship has been taken care of for those summer months when you can't be here.

ZionNews March 2018

The people in our communities need to hear about Jesus. We have a great opportunity to connect with our community. How many people are attending our churches who have never been to church before, or haven't been in years? Or as I was asked earlier in the week, if your church burned to the ground would the community care or even notice? The newly reformed Mission Committee said yes, generally because of our very successful food pantry and Preschool. The food pantry serves approximately 70 families monthly, if each family averages 3 people, that alone is 210 people who would notice we were gone. But what about the other 1290 residents in Strausstown and Upper Tulpehocken Township. We see 80 of you on Sunday morning but we still are not reaching out to approximately 1200 people. And we realize that we may never touch the lives of all of those people but it sure is worth trying.

The Mission Committee is looking for a new vision, one where we have multiple outreach opportunities going on that may involve every one of us at some point during the year. We realize that some of you have been doing individual mission projects, would you consider letting the church support your passion? Maybe the food pantry or the community dinner or even the blood drive isn't your cup of tea. We would like to hear your ideas and your thoughts on how to get the Mission of the church to be the best it can be. Don't feel like you need a personal invitation...consider this your invitation to join Christine Bashore and myself as we try to find some new and innovative ideas for Mission work at Zion. The first meeting has been scheduled for Tuesday April 10th at 7 PM.

Our world is full of needs. There are countless opportunities and ways for us to reach out to those around us; we simply have to open our eyes. We have to train ourselves to see the world through a new perspective, "What can we do to serve those around us?" Sometimes it is even helpful to ask yourself "What could I use right now?" - Whether it be a piece of gum after a dinner date, a car wash, a freshly painted school classroom, or a complete home renovation. The opportunities are endless, we just have to pause and notice them. ~Lisa Shupp
